Part 1—My World Without Racism

- Helps participants recognize how they have been conditioned to participate in racism.
- Removes shame and blame through a comprehensive experiential and dialogue educational process that uses “both left and right brain” activities to achieve new levels of insight.
- Demonstrates how being an ally to overcome racism is crucial to creating a more productive, unified workplace, school or community.

Part 2—Our World Without Racism

- Creates a vision of what an environment would look like without racism.
- Explores what it would take to create a racism free environment – and provides practical tools.
- Uncovers how each individual can make a contribution toward an environment of racial harmony.

While each part stands alone, you are encouraged to participate in both sessions.

For more than twenty-five years Healing Our Nation (HON) has been a catalyst - addressing and healing the wounds of racism across the United States. Our programs have educated thousands of people, from Alaska to Florida, from government agencies to universities, from corporations to Native American communities. We offer multiple levels of programs that take participants from understanding to strategic planning, and from personal empowerment to institutional change.
